

Chad Stewart

Chad Stewart was first introduced to hunting by his father, serving as a dove retriever and turkey hunting partner. He pursued a wildlife field job, obtaining a B.S. in Wildlife and Fisheries Science from Penn State University and a M.S. in Natural Resources and Environmental Science from the University of Illinois.

Prior to moving to Indiana, he worked with the Smithsonian's Conservation and Biology Institute as a wildlife biologist working closely with federal, state, academic and international researchers on multiple wildlife research projects. He has been working with deer for over 10 years, serving as deer biologist with the IDNR for the past 5 years. He is married with one son, a dog, and a cat inherited through marriage.
